

Cookies Policy

Cookies are small files of information that are stored on your computer's hard drive by your web browser.

We use the following cookies:

- (a) Necessary cookies: these cookies are essential for the website to function properly and cannot be disabled without severely affecting the usability of the website. The law does not require us to ask consent to use these cookies and they will always be placed when you use our website.
- (b) Functional cookies: these cookies remember various choices you make on the website to improve your experience. They are also used to display recommendations for you based on your past activity on the website. Functional cookies may be required for actions such as watching a video
- (c) Analytics cookies: these cookies gather anonymous data on how visitors use the website e.g. what pages are most visited and how long visitors stay on them as well as what device and operating system you are using. They also gather information on errors which may occur during visits which can help us fix them.
- (d) Targeting cookies: these cookies record your visit to our website, the pages you have visited and the links you have followed. We will use this information to make our website more relevant to your interests.

We also use cookies from social media platforms like Facebook, Instagram and Twitter to allow you to share information via your timeline or by liking or sharing content. These third parties may also use cookies, over which we have no control. These third parties may include, for example, advertising networks and providers of external services like web traffic analysis services.

You can block cookies by activating the setting on your browser that allows you to refuse the setting of all or some cookies. However, if you use your browser settings to block all cookies (including essential cookies) you may not be able to access all or parts of our website.
